International Cinema: Radical Female Directors

Responsible for creating and teaching a course that highlights female directors who have challenged mainstream notions of the female perspective and expanded the shape of cinema.

Facilitated discussion about filmmaking strategies that unsettle, subvert, and play with conventional frameworks around race, class, gender, and sexuality in visual culture. Encouraged final projects that incorporate multimedia and videographic criticism.

ADJUNCT PROFESSOR

2015 Department of Media Studies and Production (MSP) / Temple University. Philadelphia, PA

Writing Intensive Workshop

Responsible for creating and teaching a course that encourages students to hone their voice and explore their personal writing practice and revision process through diverse exercises and assignments across media : autobiographical, journalistic and screenwriting.

Introduction to Media Production: Teaching Assistant/ Lead Production

Instruction of all technology and lab practicum for HD video, microphones and audio recording, lighting and Live, multi-camera, TV studio production. Facilitated class discussion and critique. Demonstrated and supported best practices in editing and post-production for field and studio production.

2012-2014 College of Arts, Media and Design / University of the Arts. Philadelphia, PA

Experimental Video

Introduced critical readings that frame the tradition of avant-garde cinema, showcased essential works and contemporary time based media. Led field trips to Whitney Biennial, PMA and area galleries/alt spaces that feature innovative time based media. Created short exercises and assignments that build a strong foundation for form and content that culminates in a final time based media project.

Junior Production

Responsible for creating and teaching a course that expands cinematography skills, DSLR cinema proficiency and both field and studio lighting production in the culmination of a final project.

2009-2016 Department of Film and Media Arts / Temple University. Philadelphia, PA

Media Arts Combined

Introductory level class that outlines basic principles of audiovisual production practices across cinematic modes of narrative, documentary and experimental. Screenings and class discussion promoted intimate and collaboratively nurturing environment for learning and experimentation. Created exercises and assignments that foreground form/content relationships culminating in a final project.

Videography (grad+undergraduate)

Advanced level video production class that hones students' proficiency with diverse HD (equipment) production and multi modal distribution strategies. Demonstrated and facilitated Live multi-camera, TV studio production and nonlinear editing strategies. Created exercises and assignments emphasizing form/content relationships that culminate in a final project.

Filmmaking

Introductory level 16mm film production class that familiarizes students with basic photographic and cinematic principles in time based media. Delivered technical lecture and practicum for all 16mm film cameras, microphones, audio recorders, lighting and accessories. Introduced key terms and technical concepts related to production and post-production workflow. Created short film exercises and related assignments that culminate in a final project of dual system film and sound.

Editing

Introductory film+video editing combines theory with practice by introducing students to the history of film editing, practical editing technique, editing tradition and conventions, aesthetic and genre specific styles related to the craft of editing, alternative approaches, as well as a basic overview of HD post production workflow. Through a series of lectures, in-class exercises, projects and assignments, students learn film language, scene grammar, the fundamentals of shot sequencing, narrative structure, edit progression and digital post production technique.

Experimental Video

Among my favorite classes to teach. Introduced critical readings that frame the tradition of avant-garde cinema, showcased essential works and contemporary time based media. Facilitated discussions about nature of experimental media, hybrid modes and visual strategies. Hosted visiting artists that shared their personal practice and engaged students about the nature of experimental media strategies through discussion. Created short exercises and assignments that build a strong foundation for form and content that culminates in a final project.
